

Discipline-Specific Argument Writing

Today's Standard

11-12.WHST.1 - Write arguments focused on discipline-specific content.

Cues	Notes
What is discipline-specific argument writing?	Discipline-specific argument writing involves crafting arguments tailored to the conventions of history, science, and technical subjects.
Why is credible evidence important?	Credible evidence strengthens arguments by providing reliable support for claims.
What are some examples of discipline-specific arguments?	Examples include research papers, scientific reports, technical manuals, and debate speeches.
How do you evaluate the credibility of sources?	Evaluate credibility by considering the source's authority, accuracy, and relevance.
What are common misconceptions about this standard?	Misconceptions include thinking all arguments are the same and that evidence is not necessary.

Summary

Discipline-specific argument writing requires tailoring arguments to the conventions of different subjects, using credible evidence to support claims, and understanding the unique features of each discipline.