

Advanced Writing Techniques

Today's Standard

11-12.W.5 - Develop and strengthen writing as needed by planning, revising, editing, rewriting, or trying a new approach, focusing on addressing what is most significant for a specific purpose and audience. (Editing for conventions should demonstrate command of Language standards 1-3 up to and including grades 11-12 here.)

Cues	Notes
What is the difference between revising and editing?	Revising focuses on content and structure; editing focuses on grammar and punctuation.
Why is rewriting important?	Rewriting allows for new approaches and improvements.
What are the stages of the writing process?	Stages: planning, drafting, revising, editing, publishing. Peer review provides new perspectives and constructive feedback.
How can peer review improve writing?	Language standards 1-3 cover grammar, usage, and conventions.
What are Language standards 1-3?

Summary

Understanding the difference between revising and editing is crucial for improving writing. The writing process includes multiple stages, and peer review can provide valuable feedback. Mastery of Language standards 1-3 is essential for effective editing.