

Sentence Features Recognition

Today's Standard

1.RF.1a - Recognize the distinguishing features of a sentence (e.g., first word, capitalization, ending punctuation).

Cues	Notes
What is the first word of a sentence?	The first word of a sentence is the word that comes right after a period, question mark, or exclamation point.
Why is capitalization important?	Capitalization is important because it signals the beginning of a new sentence.
What are the types of ending punctuation?	Ending punctuation includes periods, question marks, and exclamation points, which indicate the end of a sentence and the type of sentence.

Summary

Recognizing the first word, capitalization, and ending punctuation helps students understand and construct sentences correctly.
