

Text-Visual Connections

Today's Standard

4.RL.7 - Make connections between the text of a story or drama and a visual or oral presentation of the text, identifying where each version reflects specific descriptions and directions in the text.

Cues	Notes
What are the key elements of a story?	Key elements include characters, setting, plot, and theme.
How do different mediums present a story?	Books, movies, and plays can present the same story in different ways.
Why might changes be made in different versions?	Changes might be made to better suit the medium, such as visual elements in movies.
What is the importance of analyzing all forms of media?	Analyzing all forms of media helps in understanding the story fully.

Summary

Understanding how different mediums present a story and the importance of analyzing these versions enhances comprehension and critical thinking.