

Vocabulary Acquisition

Today's Standard

K.L.6 - Use words and phrases acquired through conversations, reading and being read to, and responding to texts.

Cues	Notes
What is vocabulary acquisition?	Vocabulary acquisition involves learning new words and phrases through different means.
How can new words be learned?	New words can be learned through conversations, reading, being read to, and responding to texts.
What are some real-world applications?	Real-world applications include using new words in daily conversations, during play, and in various activities.
What is a common misconception about learning new words?	A common misconception is that new words are only learned during reading time.
How can teachers address misconceptions about vocabulary learning?	Teachers can address misconceptions by integrating new vocabulary into various parts of the day and providing repeated exposure.

Summary

Vocabulary acquisition is crucial for kindergarten students and can be achieved through conversations, reading, and various activities. Addressing misconceptions involves integrating new words into daily routines and providing repeated exposure.