

Book Parts Identification

Today's Standard

K.RI.5 - Identify the front cover, back cover, and title page of a book.

Cues	Notes
What is the front cover?	The front cover is the first page of the book and usually has the title and author.
What is the back cover?	The back cover is the last page of the book and often has a summary or reviews.
What is the title page?	The title page is inside the book and lists the title, author, and sometimes the publisher.
Why are these parts important?	These parts help us know what the book is about and who created it.
How can we identify these parts?	We can identify these parts by looking for the title, author, and other distinguishing features.

Summary

Understanding the front cover, back cover, and title page helps students navigate and understand books better.
