

Storytelling with Drawings and Words

Today's Standard

K.W.3 - Use a combination of drawing, dictating, and writing to narrate a single event or several loosely linked events, tell about the events in the order in which they occurred, and provide a reaction to what happened.

Cues	Notes
What is the standard?	The standard involves using drawing, dictating, and writing to narrate events.
Why is it important?	It is important because it helps develop storytelling and communication skills.
What are the prerequisite skills?	Students should know basic letter recognition, writing, and have some storytelling experience.
What are common misconceptions?	Misconception 1: Drawings and dictations don't need to be connected to writing.
What are the subsequent skills?	Misconception 2: Events can be told in any order.
	Subsequent skills include writing more complex narratives and using descriptive language.

Summary

The standard focuses on using drawing, dictating, and writing to narrate events, which is essential for developing storytelling and communication skills. Key prerequisites include basic letter recognition and writing skills. Common misconceptions involve the connection between drawings and writing, and the order of events. Mastery leads to more complex narrative skills.