

Narrative Writing Techniques

Today's Standard

6.W.3 - Write narratives to develop real or imagined experiences or events using effective technique, relevant descriptive details, and well-structured event sequences.

Real-World Applications for this Standard

Writing a short story; Creating a personal diary entry; Developing a script for a play; Composing a fictional blog post; Crafting a detailed travelogue

Today I Learned

Today, we learned about writing stories. We can use real or made-up events and add lots of details to make our stories interesting.

Common Stumbling Blocks

Some kids think stories have to be made up, but they can be about real things too. Others think details are not important, but they help make the story fun to read.

Quiz Me

- What is a narrative?
- Can stories be about real events?
- Why are details important in stories?
- What is one thing you need to know before writing a story?
- What will you learn after writing good stories?

Help Me

Writing stories helps us share our thoughts and ideas. We can write about things that really happened or make up new events. Adding details makes our stories fun and interesting!
