

Digital Writing and Publishing

Today's Standard

9-10.W.6 - Use technology, including the Internet, to produce, publish, and update individual or shared writing products, taking advantage of technology's capacity to link to other information and to display information flexibly and dynamically.

Real-World Applications for this Standard

Creating a blog to share personal essays and reflections.; Collaborating on a group project using Google Docs.; Publishing a class newsletter online.; Using hyperlinks to enhance a research paper.; Sharing multimedia presentations via platforms like Prezi.

Today I Learned

Today we learned how to use computers and the Internet to write and share our work. We can make changes to our writing and add pictures or links to other websites.

Common Stumbling Blocks

Some kids think using a computer for writing is just typing, but it's also about adding pictures and links. Others think once they put their writing online, they can't change it, but they can always update it.

Quiz Me

- What is one thing you can add to your writing on a computer?
- Can you change your writing after you put it online?
- What tool can you use to work with friends on a writing project?
- Why is it good to use links in your writing?
- What can you add to your writing to make it more interesting?

Help Me

Using computers to write helps us share our work with others easily. We can add pictures, links, and make changes anytime. It's like having a magic pencil that never runs out of paper!
