Today I Learned

Today, we learned about using new words and phrases that we hear in conversations, stories, and when we read. It's important because it helps us talk and write better.

Common Stumbling Blocks

Sometimes kids think they can only learn new words during reading time. But, we can learn new words anytime! Another problem is thinking we know a word after hearing it once. We need to hear and use new words many times to really understand them.

Quiz Me

- What is a new word you learned today?
- Can you use that new word in a sentence?
- Where else can we learn new words besides reading?
- Why is it important to use new words many times?
- Can you tell me a story using your new words?

Help Me

We can learn new words by talking to people, reading books, and listening to stories. Using these new words when we play, talk, and do activities helps us remember them better. For example, if we learn the word 'gigantic,' we can use it to describe a big toy or a tall tree. This way, we get better at talking and writing.
