Today's Standard

K.RI.5 - Identify the front cover, back cover, and title page of a book.

Real-World Applications for this Standard

Reading storybooks; Library visits; Book-making activities; Storytime sessions; Classroom reading corners

Today I Learned

Today, I learned about the different parts of a book. I can now identify the front cover, back cover, and title page. This helps me understand what the book is about and who wrote it.

Common Stumbling Blocks

Sometimes, kids might mix up the front and back covers of a book. They might also not know what the title page is for. The front cover usually has the title and author, while the back cover might have a summary. The title page inside tells us the title and author too.

Quiz Me

- What is the front cover?
- What is the back cover?
- What is the title page?
- Why is the front cover important?
- What can you find on the title page?

Help Me

The front cover of a book is the first page you see. It usually has the title and the name of the person who wrote the book. The back cover is the last page and might tell you a little about the story. The title page is inside the book and tells you the title and who wrote it. Knowing these parts helps us understand books better.
